Schools Open Monday August 28 For 135,000 County Students

by Mary Moien

Prince George's County public schools will open Monday, August 28 for the 2000-2001 school year. Approximately 135,000 students are expected to attend public schools in the county this year, making Prince George's County the fifth largest school district in the United States. More than 97,000 of these students are transported daily to more than 200 schools. Over the summer again this year the county has sought to hire more than 1,000 new teachers, emphasizing the hiring of as many certified teachers as feasible. New this year is mandatory full-day kindergarten at all elementary schools in the county.

Several new schools are opening this fall including Charles Herbert Flowers High School in Springdale (Lanham) and the new Northwestern High School in Hyattsville, replacing the older building. Several new elementary schools have been built in other parts of the county.

Although there were indications a year ago that a reduction in busing for integration would take place in some schools this year, no major shifts of students either into or out of Greenbelt area schools are expected this fall.

There has been information in the press regarding the reallocation of certain types of discretionary funds at each school. This reallocation has resulted in losses, some significant, for all schools in the Greenbelt area with the exception of Greenbelt Middle School and Springhill Lake Elementary School, which will receive an increase in funding. These budget cuts occurred within a few weeks of the opening of school leading legislators, parents and others to seek relief from the cuts. It appears that some schools hit hardest, including Magnolia Elementary and Greenbelt Elementary may receive some relief from these cuts if the targeted funds were allocated for hiring an additional classroom teacher.

Lunch Prices

Lunch and breakfast prices remained stable for the last two years. Elementary school children's lunch will be $1.75; reduced-price lunch will be 40 cents. Lunch for middle and high schoolers will be $1.85; reduced-price lunch 40 cents. Adult lunch will be $2.50, excluding a beverage. Breakfast in elementary schools will be $1.10; reduced-price breakfast 30 cents. Middle and high school breakfast will be $1.25; reduced-price breakfast 30 cents. Adult breakfast will be $1.50. Milk prices will stay the same at 40 cents.

Children will bring home information about free or reduced cost meals soon after the first day of school. Small families earning no more than approximately $14,000 to $21,000 can be eligible for a free meal or reduced price meal. Larger families can earn substantially more and still be eligible. Parents who think they qualify for this program may contact their child's school for the application forms if the child does not bring a form home. Certain households receiving food stamps or Temporary Cash Assistance (TCA) will receive a letter at the start of the school year stating that their children have been directly certified to receive free school meals. This letter will also state that these households should not complete a form

Sunny Days Hoped for This Year's Labor Day Festival

by Barbara Ransom and Patti Brothers

The City's annual four-day celebration of community spirit is almost here. The 46th Annual Greenbelt Labor Day Festival starts Friday, September 1 and goes through Monday, September 4. If hopes are rewarded then, bright sunny days will complement the bright, exciting events scheduled for the weekend. But the show will go on even in rain, as was proven last year during Tropical Storm Floyd.

The Festival marks the culmination of a year of planning by an independent, all-volunteer committee and the participation and involvement of hundreds of citizens, businesses and organizations throughout the city. Proceeds benefit the many city service organizations that operate the festival booths.

You can toss and turn on the many carnival rides or twist and shout to the music of the area's top bands. Stroll through the carnival and visit the many booths and savor some of the tremendous variety of foods and "goodies." You can browse the photo exhibit and the art show in the Community Center and cheer for local performers at the talent show. Kids can participate in a variety of "Kids' Games," as well as contests sponsored by the Recreation Department, and enter their pet in the Pet Show.

Be there for all three nights of the Miss Greenbelt Pageant and feel the suspense mount prior to the crowning on Sunday of Little Miss, Junior Miss, and Miss Greenbelt for the year 2000-2001. Then amble down to your favorite observation point along Crescent Road to watch the area's largest Labor Day Parade on the holiday itself. A detailed schedule of events is included on inside pages of this paper and in the souvenir program on sale at the carnival. A summary of highlights follows.

The stage will be located next to the aquatic center, with non-stop acts throughout the weekend. The carnival will operate in the parking lot of the Roosevelt Center Mall and on the lawn next to the Community Center.

Major events will also occur inside the Community Center, at Braden Field and at the ballfields on Northway. In the event of rain, stage events, bingo, and selected activities will continue in the Community Center, and the booths will be relocated there as well.

How to Get There

Free shuttle buses leave the Municipal Building every hour on the hour throughout each day to pick up and drop off Festival goers at three locations: Eleanor Roosevelt High School (at 45 minutes past the hour, Greenbelt

Volunteers Can Help 5th and 6th Graders Get a Better Education

by Barbara Likowski

Greenbelt Elementary School sixth grade teacher Donna Sturgill and fifth grade teacher Beth Novick just bubble with enthusiasm as they look forward to the new school year. Each has recently taken a son to college for the first time and now seem eager to move forward with plans for their second career — teaching. "Teaching requires a lot of time," Novick says, and balance is needed. Now with one son in college she has more time to devote to her vocation and that is "extremely important," she added.

Both teachers feel that volunteers of all kinds help to extend learning in their classrooms and can do many things teachers may not have time to do.

Donna Sturgill

Sturgill will be teaching math and spelling to the sixth grade classes. In high school her favorite class was geometry which was like solving a puzzle, she says. She will always credit her geometry teacher, Mrs. Turner, with changing her life. When Mrs. Turner found out Sturgill was not planning to go to college she said that was too bad because she would make a great math teacher. Later Sturgill left for college in South Carolina and earned a degree in elementary education. She began teaching in Prince George's County in 1977, having taught 4 1/2 years in Virginia before that. Although she taught self-contained classes, she enjoyed math the most. When Principal Carolyn Goff started departmental classes Sturgill became a math teacher, teaching math to all the sixth grade classes.

Math can be challenging, interesting and fun, Sturgill asserts. Sometimes children come in with the notion they can't do it. She tries to stimulate her students by showing them that some new concept is building on what they already know. For example when starting out to learn fractions, she points out that they must know multiplication facts in order to do fractions. They learn that it is really not new but is putting what they already know into a different form. She wants them to know math is precise, needs practice and hard work, but is also fun.

Sturgill has a curriculum that she must teach, looking ahead toward Maryland Functional Test and Comprehensive Test of Basic Skills (CTBS) tests in the spring. There are always some children who cannot keep up because somewhere along the way, they haven't learned or understood some needed concepts. They

by Diane Oberg

Although the amount was small and the final vote unanimous, lingering tension among members of the Greenbelt City Council was evident at the August 14 regular meeting during discussion of a resolution granting a no-bid contract for resurfacing the indoor pool. Council also received a petition from pool users asking that higher water and air temperatures be maintained in the facility.

Pool Resurfacing

City staff had negotiated a purchase agreement for $20,500 for Wilcoxon Construction to resurface the concrete base of the indoor pool. According to budget documents, this work should be done every seven years but has not been done since the pool opened in 1991. Council must approve in two separate readings, any contract of this size that is not awarded through a competitive bidding process. Council rules, however, allow council to suspend the rules and hold both votes in a single meeting.

Councilmember Alan Turnbull voted against the suspension of the rules, which passed on a 4-1 vote, at the same time making clear that he would likely vote for final passage. However, he said he had "some trouble" with using the no-bid and suspension of the rules procedures in this case. The resurfacing project was in the original capital budget approved by council in June and, Turnbull said, was not a matter of contention at any time. He said that staff should have pointed out to council the deadlines on this project.

As has been its practice over the last few years, council adopts the capital projects budget along with the operating budget. Then after the crunch of the normal budget review has passed, council has a worksession to revise, add or delete projects and set priorities. Then it passes an ordinance adopting those changes. The worksession was held this year on July 5. Council introduced the amended budget at the July 10 regular meeting and adopted it earlier in the August 14 meeting, after a public hearing to which nobody came.

City Manager Michael McLaughlin called Turnbull's question, "Fair enough." The problem, he said was that until the first reading of the capital budget, staff cannot be sure that any given project will "make the cut." With council meeting only once a month during the summer, this did not allow time for See COUNCIL, page 2 competitive bids on this project. The work is to be done while the pool is closed for maintenance the week of August 21. He said he would have to discuss alternative approaches with his staff. He noted that few projects involve timing problems such as this.

Councilmember Thomas White had a different perspective. He said it was council, not staff, that had created the situation by not setting its priorities until July. Since the pool only closes one week per year, the timing problem was "pretty obvious."

Mayor Judith Davis suggested that Turnbull should remind council next spring that it needs to have a "more timely worksession" on capital projects. Turnbull acknowledged that "that is one way we could deal with it, but there are other ways as well."

Although Turnbull had already made clear his intention to vote for the project, White suggested that "if there is such a disdain for suspension of the rules," council could delay the project until next August. Turnbull replied, "Excuse me, but you know this is not what I was suggesting."

The no-bid contract was then approved unanimously.

Pool Temperatures

Ada Parker Strobell presented a petition to council signed by 35 participants in the Aquatics and Fitness Center's "Arthritis Aquatics" and "Deep Water Arthritis Exercise" classes. The petitioners are requesting that the indoor pool water temperature be maintained at or above 85 degrees and that the air temperature be set five degrees above that.

Strobell said that the Arthritis Foundation recommends pool temperatures of 83 - 88 degrees in order to facilitate muscle relaxation. The participants are aware that the pool staff must balance the needs of many users, and Strobell said the participants could accept a compromise of 83 degrees, with an air temperature of 88.

McLaughlin said that the city tries to maintain a temperature of 83 but has had difficulty doing so due to mechanical and other problems. The petition was referred to staff and the Parks and Recreation Advisory Board for comment.

Committee Reports

Several committee reports were accepted by council:

The Recycling and Environment Advisory Committee recommended that all city residents be required to contract, either individually or through their cooperative or homeowners association, for refuse collection. Any head of household who could not produce such evidence would be subject to a fine if the committee's recommendation is implemented by council.

The Community Relations Advisory Board recommended against the request by the Greenbelt East Advisory Coalition that the city allow the placement of brass memorial plaques on the brick pavers at Schrom Hills Park.

Newspaper Vending Boxes

Council expressed concern about the proliferation of newspaper and advertising boxes on city streets. Many of the adver-

Win a Telescope

by John Settle

The Greenbelt Astronomy Club will give away a telescope as part of their fund raising efforts at this year's Greenbelt Labor Day Festival. The telescope was donated to the club by Hands-on Optics of Damascus.

The telescope is a Mead Model #4500 reflector telescope with a 4.5" diameter primary mirror. It is used, but in mint condition. This telescope is ideal for a beginning amateur astronomer. An observer can get a good view of the rings of Saturn, the largest moons of Jupiter, Jupiter's colored atmospheric bands and many other inspiring objects.

Each visitor to the Astronomy Club's Labor Day Festival booth who plays the game "Go Galileo," makes a purchase, or a donation will have a chance to register for the drawing. The winner will be announced at the festival Monday morning. The telescope giveaway is part of the club's continuing mission to encourage public interest in the exploration of the night sky.

tising boxes, in particular, are not anchored and raise safety concerns. Council agreed that it was time again to introduce an ordinance regulating the placement of such boxes. A draft ordinance will likely be introduced at the September 11 regular meeting.

Museum Curator

Council directed that the draft position description be revised to make clear that the museum curator works for the city and reports to the city manager, not to the Friends of the Greenbelt Museum.

Boards and Committees

Sieglinde Peterson was appointed to the Recycling and Environment Advisory Committee and council accepted the resignations of Derek Thompson from the Advisory Committee on Education and Mary Veazey Clark from the Arts Advisory Board.

Nursery School Adds Classes

Due to high enrollment and community demand, Greenbelt Nursery School and Kindergarten has scheduled additional classes. Openings are now available in three and five-day nursery school programs. Supplemental child care is available before and after nursery school, between 7:30 a.m. and 6 p.m.

As a parent cooperative, Greenbelt Nursery School values and uses the knowledge and experience of parents as well as staff and community in its intergenerational and multi-cultural programs. Founded in 1941, the school is licensed by the Maryland State Department of Education. It offers a creative learning environment. Small classes with low student-to-teacher ratios foster children's love of learning, self awareness, and ability to solve problems. Age-appropriate activities include cooking, music, art, literature, and field trips. All the programs put children's interests and experiences at the heart of the learning process.

Dump Out Water To Control Mosquitos

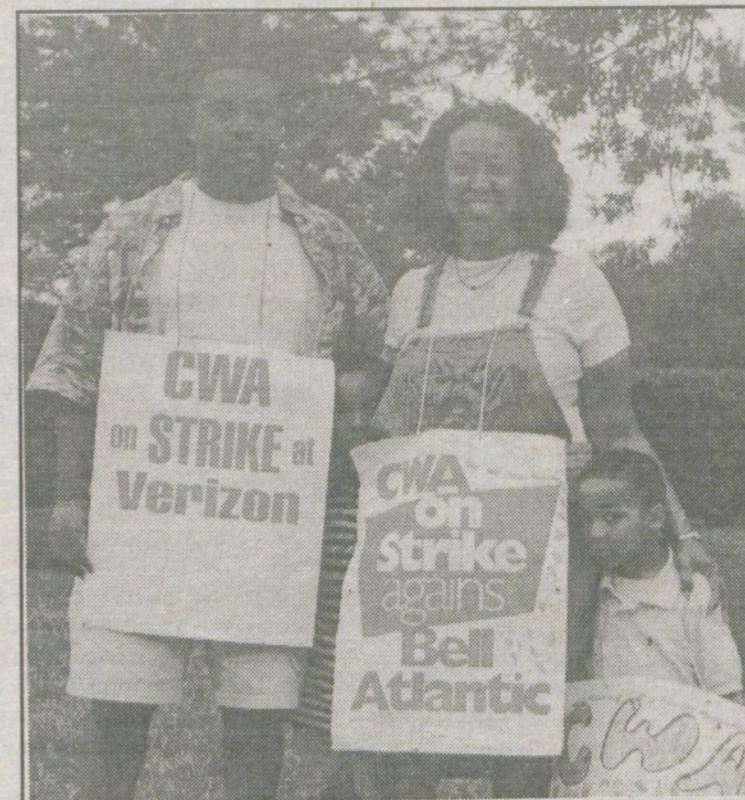

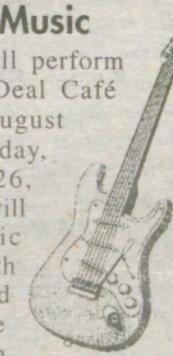

Greenbelt residents have been complaining about mosquitos and asking the city to spray. The state is applying insecticide to kill mosquito larvae in bodies of standing water in the city about every two weeks. Spraying is not being done by the state in Prince George's County because there is opposition to spraying. The mosquito count for spraying is very high and this area does not qualify; spraying is not as effective on the Asian tiger mosquito, which is causing much of the problem.

"This mosquito will not be controlled by insecticides," saying Maryland Department of Agriculture Mosquito Control Chief Cyrus Lesser. "The only effective method of attacking it is dumping out standing water from small containers in everyone's yard." He recommends the entire neighborhood working together to make sure every container, no matter how small, is dumped out after every rain storm. A new swarm of adults will emerge each day as long as containers such as flower pots, cans, and bird baths are not frequently emptied of water.

The tiger mosquito is active from morning until night. It will remain active as long as temperatures stay above 60 degrees and rain continues to fall every ten days.

Café Presents Weekend Music

Last week we had a double-header game with Bowie and Bowie won the first game 16 - 5, again due to errors on our part. In the second game Greenbelt came back with an over-the-280-foot-fence home run by Lefty Smith to win 7 - 5.

This was followed up Wednesday by a game with a very good Parkville team. Jim Cole hit a three R.B.I. homer and Lefty Smith's bat brought in two more runs resulting in an 11 - 9 win.

This game was error free and resulted in Parkville getting shut out the final three innings. We have an end-of-season tournament coming up in Columbia August 28, 29, and 30.

ERHS Is Runner-up In Sallie Mae Cup

Sallie Mae, the nation's leading provider of education funding, recently awarded $5,000 in scholarship funds to Eleanor Roosevelt High School as a runner up in the 1999-2000 Sallie Mae Cup. More than 200 schools in the Washington, D.C. area competed. Scholarship winners were determined by a scoring system that awards points based on a 60:49 balance of student grades and athletic performance during the past academic year.

Eleanor Roosevelt scored on the field by claiming Maryland state titles in football and girls track as well as six county and regional championships. Combined with the outstanding academic results of its 400 student athletes, Eleanor Roosevelt emerged as a Cup finalist.

New Citizens Police Academy Created

The Police Chief's Association of Prince George's County announced on August 9 the creation of the Municipal Citizen's Police Academy of Prince George's County. The academy is the result of a partnership with the Hyattsville City Police Department, the Prince George's County Municipal Academy and the Police Chief's Association of Prince George's County. It is specifically designed for citizens 18 years of age and older who are residents of municipalities within Prince George's County that fund their own police departments, including Greenbelt.

The Academy, funded through a grant from the Governor's Office of Crime Control and Prevention, will give citizens an idea of what it takes to be a police officer. Among the topics included in the curriculum will be community policing, accident investigation, and crime prevention.

The classes, which are tentatively scheduled to begin on Wednesday, September 6, will be held weekly for three hours and will run for 14 consecutive weeks. The class will be limited to 30 students on a first-come, first-serve basis.

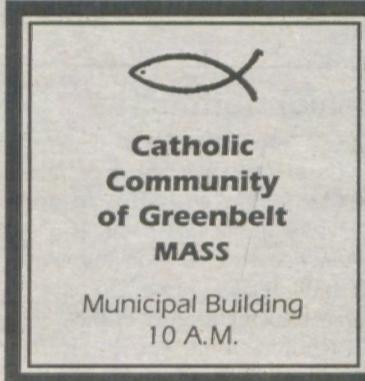

The classes will take place on the campus of Prince George's County Community College and various local police agencies.

For more information, please contact a local municipal police agency.

Make the Bus Ride to School Safe

School buses are ridden by about 25 million students. Although this is one of the safest ways to travel to and from school, injuries do occur. Many injuries happen when children are boarding or exiting the bus. A blind spot extends 10 feet around the bus, obstructing the driver's view. Children are not aware of this danger zone and might mistakenly believe that if they can see the bus, the bus driver can see them. The National SAFE KIDS Campaign offers important tips for school bus safety.

Waiting for the Bus

A child's behavior at the bus stop is a very important aspect of school bus safety. Children should follow these safety tips while waiting for the bus:

Arrive at the stop at least five minutes before the bus is scheduled to arrive.

Stay out of the street and avoid horseplay.

Always wait for parents on the same side of the street as the school bus loading/unloading zone.

On the Bus

While on the bus, each child should observe these safety rules:

Remain seated at all times and keep the aisles clear.

Do not throw objects.

Do not shout or distract the driver unnecessarily.

Keep head and arms inside the bus at all times.

Boarding and Leaving the Bus

When boarding or leaving the bus, the children should always do the following things:

Wait until the bus comes to a complete stop before exiting.

Walk in a single file line.

Use the handrail to avoid falls.

Be aware of the driver's blind spot (10 feet in front of the bus) when walking away from the bus. Do not bend over to pick up dropped items. Instead, children should notify the driver and ask for help.

Cross the street at least 10 feet in front of the bus.

Remove loose drawstrings or ties on jackets and sweatshirts and replace with Velcro, snaps or buttons. Loose drawstrings or book bags can snag on bus handrails putting children in danger of being strangled or dragged by the bus.

If parents are concerned that a bus stop is in a dangerous place, they should talk with school officials to change the location.

Friends of Theatre Discuss Fundraising

by Sabine Hentrich

How to raise money, the issue that first brought the members of the group together, was still the major topic when the Friends of the Greenbelt Theatre (FOGT) met on August 8. Over 30 people attended.

President Kevin Denney, who also serves as treasurer, reported that the theater made a profit of about $7,000. Being in the black, however, does not mean that Paul Sanchez, who was unable to attend the meeting, will definitely keep it open. Since the theater is privately owned, the decision is up to owner Sanchez, Denny reported. (The News Review was not able to reach him directly for this story.)

Fund Raising Ideas

FOGT members discussed the usefulness of film festivals as a means of raising money. According to Denney, only two of the previous festivals were lucrative, the Alfred Hitchcock and the Indiana Jones festivals. Others, such as the Stanley Kubrick and the Orson Welles festivals, "tanked," he said.

Many discussed whether to have a booth at the Labor Day festival, especially after Mayor Judith Davis announced that this year's tables will be set up in the mall, not the parking lot. Denney wanted a table directly in front of the theater to advertise membership and upcoming festivals. Jorge Bernardo mentioned that the upcoming Christmas season will be filled with festivals and events and that this should be advertised starting with the Labor Day Festival. The classics, "A Miracle on 34th Street" and "It's a Wonderful Life," are scheduled to play.

Bernardo is also organizing an event with actress Karolyn Grimes, who played ZuZu Bailey (James Stewart's film daughter, who says "Every time a bell rings, an angel gets its wings") in "It's a Wonderful Life." She will attend the movie's screening and meet the audience on Saturday, December 23.

Others thought about renting out the movie theater for private events, such as birthday parties and non-profit organization receptions. Jones said, however, that Sanchez had already done this.

Nicole DeWald, arts coordinator for the Community Center, mentioned that she wants to put together a "Master Calendar for the Arts in Greenbelt" — a small guide distributed in public libraries throughout the county and Washington region — in order to attract non-Greenbelters to the theater and to other arts programs and events.

Larry Hilliard mentioned his project, "First Friday Movie Club." With Sanchez's support, Hilliard plans, as he previously has done several times, to show movies to elementary and middle schoolers who are off during the afternoon on every first Friday of the month. There are still volunteer opportunities for parents with connections to local (public or private) schools.

Further ideas to help the theater raise money included co-marketing with other businesses, such as the New Deal Cafe. For instance, a theater ticket might include a complimentary cup of coffee. Members also discussed whether it was feasible to post free advertisements, such as in the Greenbelt News Review or papers distributed by the public library.

Other people talked about enlarging FOGT's email list (particularly outside the Greenbelt area) and improving their website, which is www.pgtheatres.com/.

Several members agreed that even though previous suggestions were noteworthy, a "low tech" approach (word of mouth) is the best way to get people to come to the Greenbelt Theatre.

During the discussion, participants elected a publicity manager, Andrew Carruthers. Anyone with ideas is invited to contact him at the following email address AndyC@vidmom.com.

Non-Profit Organization

During the meeting, the president of the Greenbelt Association of the Visual Arts (GAVA), Barbara Simon, reported on the advantages and steps to becoming a non-profit organization. Simon mentioned that there are three main advantages: the availability of funds, public relations, and information on resources.

She elaborated on how to get approved by the IRS. Most Friends agreed that the possibility of up-front money to finance festivals and joint ventures with other non-profit organizations sounded enticing. Carruthers, Virginia Moryadas, and Yvette King volunteered to look into becoming a non-profit organization.

Members agreed to approach Sanchez with this idea. Robert Haupt, the theater's projectionist, who represented Sanchez at the meeting, said that he believes Sanchez is in favor of his theater's becoming a non-profit organization.

Members' Concerns

"People need to be able to enter the theater earlier to get food and drink with plenty of time to get into their seats before the movie starts," said Eileen Peterson. She further suggested that the marquee be lit earlier to alert customers that they can now enter the movie theater. Several members agreed with her, mentioning that there are indeed some negative aspects to the theater's "laid-back atmosphere."

Members further spoke about the complaint that the theater does not provide adequate parking. Jones said that many people do not know about the additional parking by the post office, the Co-op, behind the public library next to the Community Center, as well as plenty of on-street parking.

Many also discussed FOGT's email announcements. Jones and Denney acknowledged that even though it would be great to let people know which movies will be showing at the Greenbelt Theatre several weeks ahead of time, this is not always possible because of certain requirements of movie distributors.

The next FOGT meeting is scheduled for September 19 at 7:30 p.m. in the Community Center. Volunteers are always welcome.

Music by Rote

by Nick Mydral

What comes to mind when you talk about 12 to 15-year-olds? How about 12 to 15-year-olds who play music? Last Friday night it was the Fred Foss Youth Jazz Orchestra. They are sponsored by the Prince Georges County Arts Council and presented by the City of Greenbelt Department of Recreation's City Stages Performance Series. Planned for Attack Park, the venue had to be changed to the Community Center gymnasium because of bad weather. The August 18th concert featured music from Ellington to Silva.

Because not everyone showed up on time, the seven o'clock performance started 15 minutes late. The first number was "All Blues" by Miles Davis. The jazz orchestra is made up of electronic keyboard, violin, three saxophones, trumpet, drums, and bass guitar. What an interesting combination. Under the direction of Fred Foss, the jazz orchestra has been together about three years. All had been working with Foss even though they moved to different areas to go to school. They decided to stay together as a musical group and practice in the basement of Fred's house. The Davis number had a nice keyboard part done by Paul Joiner. What made it all the more interesting was that he was playing with a cast on his right hand. Amazing!

"Equinox" by John Coltrane had some good solo work by sax's Arlen Garrett, Obie Gero, bass player Bushra Lelsayed, and the director's son drummer Brandon Foss. "African Flower" by Duke Ellington finished out the first half of the program. Zola Neal on violin was featured.

The second half started with "Song for My Father" by Horace Silva.

When I asked Fred Foss about the unusual set-up of three sax and a violin to go along with the other instruments, he said that they had many more musicians who were not performing that night. "I teach by Rote" was his answer to how do you get arrangements for the unusual combination of instruments you have in the group? He quickly added "they all can read music." Blue Bossa featured a trumpet solo by Monsur Benkeris, keyboard of Paul Joiner, and bassist Bushra Lelseyed. Last but not least was "Perdito" by Duke Ellington. Good drum solo by Brandon Foss and saxes featuring Obie Gero and Michael Peretino. After shouts of encore, the jazz orchestra played "Perdito" again. Some amazing talent. Hope to hear more from them. Thank you Prince George's County Arts Council since all of the performers are from the city of D.C.

Festival Will Provide Great Night Time Music

by Patti Brothers

This year's Labor Day stage will be filled with great night time entertainment!

Bad Weather Boyz

Appearing on stage on Friday night, following the introduction of the Miss Greenbelt contestants, will be the Bad Weather Boyz. The Boyz are a four-piece dance band who play music from the '60s through the '90s, with styles ranging from the rock and roll of the Beatles and Eric Clapton to the rhythm and blues of Motown greats James Brown and Stevie Ray Vaughn. The Boyz have an impressive lead vocalist and an unbeatable lead guitarist over a solid foundation of bass and drums. This band brings its own sound and style to the great tunes of yesterday and today. The band's lead vocalist, Irvin Utz, who also plays guitar and percussion, has fronted bands such as Joint Possession, Ichabod Crane, Vintage and Random Access.

Ken Fiester, bass guitarist, has played with his brother Robert for many years and has played with such talent as Motown recording artist Eva Cassidy. Robert Fiester, vocalist and lead guitarist, has recorded and performed all over the DC/Baltimore area for over 20 years, with countless acts in nearly every style.

Robert has recorded two albums with Brian Jack, including the local top-five smash, "The Promise of Love," which included hits like "Another Like You" and "Good to Go." Robert also recorded two albums with rising jazz star Slim Man, "The End of the Rainbow" and "Closer to Paradise," which can still be heard nationwide. Robert has recorded dozens of TV and radio commercials, both local and national, for clients such as Quality Inn, Cellular One, Crown Petroleum and Blue Cross/Blue Shield.

Conte Bellucci, on drums and vocals, is following in the tradition of his father, a longtime jazz drummer in Washington. Conte first started playing drums to the music of James Brown and Motown. Over the years, he has progressed to playing all styles of rock and roll and rhythm and blues with bands including George Jessup and the Jewels, Kid Blue, Bad Habit and The Belairs.

Off Duty

Off Duty will be on stage Saturday night, following the talent portion of the Miss Greenbelt Pageant. Off Duty is composed of members of the law enforcement community, specifically Paula Clineinst, one of Greenbelt's own, on vocals, from the Department of Justice; Marc Limansky on keyboard and sax; Jerry Martin on drums, from the University of Maryland Police Department; Tony Thurston on vocals, George Coleman on guitar, Tom Provenza on sound, from the Maryland Park Police Department; Chris "Scott" Purvis on rhythm guitar, from the Hyattsville City Police Department; and Angelo Consoli on bass guitar, and Carrie Pryce, the band's manager, from the Prince George's County Police Department.

The Off Duty Band plays a wide variety of music, including songs like "Johnny B. Good,"

"Play That Funky Music," "Sweet Home Alabama," "Something Like That," "Thunder Rolls," "Shimmer," and "Counting Blue Cars," to name a few.

Lead vocalists Clineinst and Thurston complement each other with smooth backup vocals when they're not singing the lead. Off Duty has performed at various local functions such as the benefit dance for Steve "Kiko" Gingell, at FOP fundraisers, the 94th Aerosquadron, the West Hyattsville Festival, and most recently at the Naval Surface Warfare Center as the opening act for the Hubcaps.

Pride

Pride, returning from the 1999 Festival, will be taking the stage on Sunday night, following the crowning of the new Miss Greenbelts. Pride has been performing in the Baltimore-Washington, Virginia and Eastern Shore areas for the last 20 years. The group performs the hits of today, mixed with some old favorites, with a fervor that gives the band its name. The band members take "Pride" in transforming the songs heard on the radio into live performances.

The nucleus of the band consists of husband and wife team Jeanne and Jim Black, who began performing together in high school in 1975. Jim, the keyboardist, also supplies some lead and background vocals. Jeanne brings to the group expressive vocals, a high-energy stage presence and adds guitar, trumpet, harmonica and percussion instruments to her list of talents.

VOLUNTEERS CAN HELP

need one on one help in order to catch up. Volunteers would be a valuable asset here, she confirms.

People don't need a math degree to help, she says. Sometimes children come in with the idea they can't do math. She asks that if a parent wasn't good at math to please "keep it a secret." It is so necessary to convince children they can despite the can't attitude. It takes practice, self discipline sticking at it and studying it. Volunteers can help the children one on one by helping them to evaluate their work so they can see what they did wrong and go on from there. As the children improve, they gain confidence in themselves and many times their behavior improves.

Volunteers can also help with basics and vocabulary. What is arithmetic? What does perimeter mean? Children need to know basic things such as that regrouping and borrowing are the same thing but different words.

Making a learning or challenging center (which comes with directions) takes about an hour to put together. Volunteers could do this.

One of the best tools is the computer. Children can do math drills on the computers. It doesn't require planning by the volunteer; the program is already loaded into the computer. However, a volunteer needs to be there to answer questions, to encourage students and sometimes to give the drills a different form by asking the children to put on paper what they have been doing on the computer. The computer is used to reinforce concepts or strategies being taught in the classroom.

One method that Sturgill uses with her students is a multiplication drill. She scatters multiplication facts on a paper. The children are given five minutes to do 100 problems. Those who get 100 correct, must do them in four minutes the next time, then three, etc. The children love the challenge and it is healthy competition. This project requires a huge amount of grading and time. Although Sturgill does all of her own grading, volunteers would be welcome to grade just these drills.

Sturgill considers it a compliment when children protest that their math class is the shortest class. She knows it seems that way to them because they are enjoying and learning math.

Beth Novick

Novick also credits a teacher with leading her toward teaching. Her father was in the Navy and she attended eight different schools in grades K through 12. In sixth grade she attended Cape St. Clair School in Annapolis. When her teacher realized she was finishing her work before the others, he permitted her to tutor first graders in reading. When asked to write an essay about what she wanted to be when she grew up, she wrote about being a teacher.

Much later when she had a family, she became certified in early childhood education by Prince George's Community College. When she started working in Center School's After School Program (ASP) she realized she liked working with older children. She transferred to Bowie State University, meanwhile continuing in the ASP. After graduating from Bowie she taught three years in the county, then volunteered to teach math at the Friends School in College Park and was a volunteer in language arts and remedial reading at Newport School in Kensington. She also volunteered at Sandy Springs Friends School in the admissions department.

While Novick was working in their family business, the Mobil gas station, the Fuels for Schools program was started. Greenbelt Elementary and St. Hugh's schools share the proceeds of a penny a gallon on Wednesdays.

When she called to volunteer at Greenbelt Elementary and discovered they needed a fifth grade teacher, she took the job. This year Novick will be teaching 5th grade reading and language arts.

Volunteers, she emphasizes, are needed to listen to children read one on one. This is an especially necessary part of her program.

Beth Novick, 5th grade reading and language arts teacher at Greenbelt Elementary School

- photo by Leigh Catterton

One of Novick's teaching activities is her p-q-p program (praise, questions, polish). This is part of the writing process, steps toward writing a final draft.

The first step in the process is generating ideas which may come from reading, class discussions, individual thinking, etc. That is followed by brainstorming, choosing a topic and writing a rough draft. Once this written form (essay, report, story) is done, they go back to the rough draft.

P-q-p is used for revision. First the children read their drafts to their partners, who praise the part they liked. Then comes the questioning which may help the writer to elaborate, add details or eliminate parts that are unnecessary so that the story becomes more interesting. Polishing, or editing, using caret, cut and paste, comes next. Here help may be needed from many sources, a dictionary, peer, or, of course, a volunteer.

After completing the use of tools, a final draft is ready for presentation or publication.

All of this is a challenge which demands a high level of thinking skills from the child. They may need the support of an adult volunteer who is present and can answer questions immediately so they can move on in their process.

When using a computer at the stage of gathering ideas and information, students use the Internet for research, as a safety net, the research area is framed by using a Web Quest (WQ) where a teacher or volunteer has located topic related web sites for students to use, then placed those hyperlinks (transfers) on to the WQ page so that the child can independently do research at these related sites (like a bibliography). Volunteers are needed because an adult needs to be with them (five children at a time). Both fifth and sixth grade classes need volunteers for this.

The sixth grade classes are studying Canada and web sites (WQ links) need to be found about Canada so the children can do research.

Volunteer Opportunities

There are many ways volunteers can help the fifth and sixth grade students and teachers. Some such as one on one reading and math take a certain block of time and commitment. Many take less time and some are one-time needs.

In Jim Benko's 6th grade write-a-book project, help will be needed to put the books together and to bind the finished books.

Tasks such as walking children who finish early to the library or computer lab, stacking books, working with supplies are all necessary and needed jobs.

Volunteering can sometimes be done from home by making phone calls or including one more stop in the family's shopping trip to pick up needed materials.

All volunteers are welcome. Those who have a special talent or time to give should not hesitate to offer. Volunteers have offered to do things on their lunch hour, done the Scholastic book order and many more. Please call a number from the box in this paper to volunteer.

SCHOOLS OPEN

for free meals this year.

Safety

Safety measures are in place both at the schools and on the buses. The school system employs more than 50 investigators/counselors, field operations supervisors and security assistants.

Registration

State law requires school attendance for every child between the ages of five and 16. All children in the state of Maryland will be required to attend kindergarten or an alternative program. A law was passed six years ago that lowered the age of compulsory school attendance to five years of age and affecting all children who are five by December 31. It requires that children attend kindergarten before entering first grade. This year, county students will attend a full-day kindergarten.

The law permits some exemptions. Five-year-olds may be enrolled in a childcare center or Head Start program or home schooling. When appropriate, a child may be granted a one-year level-of-maturity waiver.

Children cannot be enrolled in first grade unless they have completed kindergarten or an alternative program. A parent or guardian of a child who attended an alternative program must register the child for first grade prior to the opening of school of the school year in which the child becomes six years old and must provide documentation showing proof of attendance in the alternate setting. Documentation includes the date the child was enrolled and the number of days the child was absent.

A six-year-old child who moves into Maryland who has not had a kindergarten experience may be enrolled in kindergarten or first grade. The local school system will determine the appropriate grade placement.

Newcomers to the school system should bring their child's birth certificate, proof of residence in Prince George's County (deed, rental contract, etc.), record of immunization and the child's last report card if entering first grade or above.

Extra-Curricular Activities

High school students need to have a 2.0 or better grade point average in order to participate in extra-curricular sports or activities; averages will be computed each quarter.

Expulsion Policy

Strict standards will continue to be upheld for drug, alcohol and weapons abuse (including knives). Students need to be aware that no weapons may be brought to school at any time and that expulsion will result should this rule be broken. According to the Code of Student Conduct, students will be expelled for the first offense.

For incidents involving drugs or alcohol, the students will be expelled for the first offense involving distribution and the second offense involving possession. Most of these students will not be eligible for readmission to the Prince George's County school system. Students who are readmitted must remain expelled for at least the remainder of the semester in which the incident occurred and the following full semester. They must also present documentation of satisfactory participation in an alcohol/drug treatment program. Should a child bring a loaded weapon to school, the parent will be prosecuted under state law.

Policy on Medication

Students are permitted to take prescription and non-prescription medications during the school day only when it is deemed absolutely necessary and only under the supervision of school system personnel. One of three forms must be on file for each individual situation: a physician's medication authorization for prescription and nonprescription medication form PS-51; a parent/guardian's and physician's medication authorization for emergency medication (epipen) for management of acute allergic reaction form PS-51-EPIPEN; and/or a physician's authorization for medication by inhaler/mechanical device form PS-51/INH. Forms are available at all schools.

Parents are asked to inform the school principal, health services staff and the classroom teacher of any known allergy or serious health problem their children may have. Every effort will be made to protect all students from injury and to provide a healthful environment.

Students will be transported by ambulance to the nearest medical facility should he/she require emergency treatment that cannot be provided at the school site. Parents will be notified as soon as possible.

Dress Code

A dress code for students is in effect. The goal is not to embarrass children but to encourage them to come to school dressed in good taste. (See box)

WEB site

The Prince George's County School system has an elaborate web site containing general information about the school system as well as detailed information on policy issues, future plans, school board meetings and agendas, and information about individual schools in the system. Each school in the Greenbelt area has a brief website describing its goals and programs. The most popular site is a listing of lunch menus for an entire month. The site can be reached at <<http://www.pgcps.org>>.

County Schools Dress Code

Head

Headdress can be worn indoors for religious or health reasons only.

Shirts and Blouses

Shirts and blouses should be continuous from neckline to waist. The entire mid-section should not show. No tank tops and muscle shirts.

Greenbelt Girl Scouts Need Adult Leaders

Hundreds of girls will head back to Greenbelt Girl Scout troops this fall. Girl Scouts offer fun and exciting programs for girls attending kindergarten through high school.

The First Scout program is girl-driven, reflecting the interests and needs of participating girls; provides girls with a variety of experiences; offers age-appropriate activities at each age level; encourages a progression of skill development and responsibility.

sibility through the different age levels (Daisy, Brownie, Junior, Cadette, and Senior Girl Scout) and promotes the development of leadership and decision-making skills.

Troops in Greenbelt are now gearing up for the new year and caring adult leaders are needed for the many girls interested in joining. Call Beverly Smith at 301-441-3814 to find out more about Girl Scouts, or send her an email at Smithpad@aol.com

Sunday is billed as Family Day, sponsored by Beltway Plaza, with entertainment appealing to all members of the family. The carnival and rides continue and there's a variety of acts on the Festival stage. At 1 p.m., a newcomer to the festival, the group 24U (pronounced two-for-you) brings a delightful blend of tunes from many popular singers to the Festival stage. It's a great performance by a duo that personalizes much of the presentation, encouraging the audience to enjoy themselves and get lost in familiar melodies. At 3 p.m., folk singer John Hill returns from up Route 95, presenting voice and guitar renditions that make it easy to lie back on a Sunday afternoon and revel in the atmosphere. Ida Siebert, the very talented and stylish local vocalist, brings her special, full sound to the stage at 5 p.m. The crowning of Little Miss, Junior Miss, and Miss Greenbelt begins at 6 p.m. The stage presentation is sponsored by Capitol Cadillac, while each contestant has her own, separate sponsor. Organization and Funding

The Greenbelt Labor Day Festival Committee begins meeting soon after the end of this year's Festival to plan the next one. The Festival relies on some key services from city departments — public works, recreation, and police — but receives no city funding. There are many expenses to running a Festival from fees for stage and parade performers to fees for trophies and awards, signs, publicity and postage, equipment and services. The entire Festival is supported by nominal fees paid by those who participate in some key events, a portion of the profits from carnival booths, a commission from the carnival rides, and the donations and contributions of citizens, businesses and organizations. Those donors and supporters are listed in the Festival schedule and the Souvenir Program. The Festival Committee seeks volunteers for next year's Festival even as this one is going on. To volunteer, provide a suggestion, or even a complaint, stop by the Festival Information Booth
